2024: YOUR YEAR TO CREATE THE PERFECT HOME

Auckland Home Show 5–8 September 2024

AS WE PREPARE to open the Auckland Home Show for another year, we can't help but be very excited by what we're seeing from our exhibitors this year.

There's no doubt that the past 12 months have been bumpy, but we've been buoyed by the tenacity, the innovation and enthusiasm of the loyal tribe of businesses that will make up the show this year.

Whether its outdoors, kitchens, bathrooms, security, renovations or any number of electronic products, we've had a strong contingent of brands and businesses stepping up to fill each category. And they're bringing exciting ideas and new products from around the world as well as tried and true locally made items.

The thing is; as we all know, the economy might ebb and flow, but ultimately things will get better -and as always, there's no investment greater than your home. It's your place of comfort and safety, it's where your passions lie. It's a canvas where you get to craft your very own masterpiece.

So, bring your plans, your dreams and your ambitions and let's get started. There's no better time to start planning your new home or renovation than right now! (and while there's some great deals on offer).

Don't wait til 2025 to start your planning. Let's make 2024 your year to create the perfect home!

04 Show Highlights

There's more to see and do at this year's show than you can shake a hammer at! Look, learn and be inspired.

FREE DAILY SEMINARS

THE DESIGN RENOVATE DECORATE seminars, proudly sponsored by Resene, are where you'll learn all the insider tips and tricks to get your renovation or home improvement project over the line! With 14 sessions a day, covering important topics such as kitchen and bathroom renovations, outdoor living, colour trends, budgeting for your renovation, AI smart home technology, de-cluttering your home and much more, these seminars are your essential destination for information that will potentially help speed your project and save you thousands.Our expert speakers will give you their latest insights, plus they're ready to answer your questions, give you the right advice, inspiration and ideas to complete your next project.

> Check the schedule for times and speakers. Sessions are free to attend and run for approximately 25 minutes each, first-in 'best dressed'

DIY IS A KIWI TRADITION, but if you're new to the game, our 'How To Workshops' will definitely get you started. Our experts will treat visitors to a variety of 20-minute hands-on demonstrations, covering a huge variety of home projects. Topics range from minimalist home organisation, wallpaper, upcycling furniture, home brewing, decking, plus much more!

> Check the schedule on page 16 for times and talent!

WANTING TIME TO BROWSE without the pressure and the crowds? Make a night of it at the show. Arrive after 6:00pm (Thursday-Saturday) you'll get in for our Twilight Session price of only $10 entry. The show is open until 9:00pm, so that gives you three hours of browsing the Home Show, as well as enjoying great food, drink and entertainment on offer. Bring a friend and see you at twilight!

NOT EVERY BUSINESS making great products for the home can afford a large stand at the show, so we've created a marketplace where smaller artisans, inventers, craftspeople and traders can show off their products to our visitors. This is an area of surprise and delight, where you'll be sure to find something you want to take home – to put on display or to improve your life!

EARLY BIRDS capture the deal! Our exhibitors have come up with some SUPER exciting, one-off deals, specials and discounts for visitors that will make it worth getting in early. The Auckland Home Show is famous for its show specials, but on Thursday, exhibitors are going above and beyond to provide something to reward our loyal first day attendees. So, bring your plans, bring your ideas, or just bring your feet to the show on the Thursday!

HUNTING HOME BARGAINS is a hunger-making exploit. So, we've assembled a formidable lineup of food trucks offering delicious, nutritious meals. Our lineup includes the mouthwatering options of: Wedg Ave Woodfired Pizza, Vege Bang Bang, Smoking Shack, Karaage Boy and Double Dutch Fries.

WHO DOESN'T LOVE a summer barbeque? We certainly do! That's why we've crafted a special area next to the Village Green, dedicated to the best of outdoor living and BBQs. Come face the flames, smell the smoke, and taste some stunning mouth-watering morsels. But that's not all—this year, our Backyard Setup is packed with fun and relaxation. Dive into our backyard-style pool or challenge your friends to some classic backyard games. By the time BBQ weather arrives, you'll be a pro and ready to turn your own backyard into a summer haven!

IF YOU'VE EVER wanted to be the one who throws the best backyard gettogethers, our workshops are perfect for you. We'll show you how to cook a steak to perfection, brew your own beer, and mix cocktails that will make your friends think you're a pro. It's all about learning simple tricks that can turn your backyard into the place everyone wants to hang out.

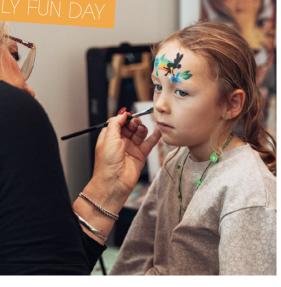

IF BBQ IS YOUR THING, you won't want to miss our HOME ON THE GRILL competition, organised and hosted by the Steak Cookoff Association (SCA). It's going to be a fun, smoky showdown where NZ's best grillers compete to see who's the best. You can watch, cheer them on, and maybe pick up a few grilling tips along the way. And enter your own junior BBQ star to get a chance to compete and win prizes! So, make sure to grab a spot and enjoy the action.

SUNDAY FAMILY FUN DAY SUNDAY IS FUN DAY at the Auckland Home Show, with extra FREE entertainment planned to make it a great day out for the whole family. With a heap of fun attractions including face painting, colouring competitions, Paint a Rock challenges and 'Kids Workshops for all the up and coming builders out there.

> At 11am, kids can join an exciting remote-controlled race of mini Husqvarna lawnmowers on a track weaving through our Backyards and BBQ feature area. All kids welcome to join. Spot prizes for winners and enthusiastic starters.

A LANDSCAPING 'MUST-SEE' MASTERPIECE AWAITS VISITORS AT THE AUCKLAND HOME SHOW

STEP INTO A WORLD WHERE the elegance of geometric design meets the natural beauty of the outdoors at the Auckland Home Show's garden feature.

This innovative display is not just a visual delight but a source of inspiration for anyone looking to transform their outdoor space into a harmonious blend of nature and design.

The inspiration behind the design is to interpret nature's curves and lines through geometry, creating a space that is both structured and natural - showing what's possible with the materials available here in Auckland, using a combination of modern design principles and sustainable practices.

The exhibit is divided into three distinct garden spaces, each with its own theme and character. The Entertainment Garden is a social oasis where clean lines and structured forms provide the perfect setting for gatherings.

Next is the Tropical Garden, a lush paradise where bold geometric shapes enhance the vibrancy of exotic plants. This space offers a mini-retreat that evokes the feeling of an island getaway right into your backyard.

The third space, the Sustainable/Native Garden, embraces eco-conscious living. Here, native flora is carefully selected and arranged in a way that reflects both order and harmony, promoting sustainable practices while maintaining a beautiful and functional space.

For those seeking simplicity without sacrificing style, Easy-Care Garden offers an inspiring solution. Designed with low-maintenance plants and geometric layouts, this space is ideal for anyone looking to enjoy a beautiful garden with minimal upkeep.

David Rhodes, General Manager of Parrot Landscaping, the team building the feature says building such a detailed and expansive exhibit is no small feat. "We've got a pretty tight deadline, but with good planning and a great team, we're confident we can pull it off".

The construction will involve a variety of materials, from composite decking and porcelain paving to corten steel and compact keystone retaining blocks.

"We're trying to show a bit of a floating framed deck with porcelain pavers instead of your standard timber finish, and we'll integrate lighting throughout the garden to create an ambient vibe," he adds.

Whether you're a gardening enthusiast, a design lover, or simply someone looking for fresh ideas for your outdoor space, this exhibit is not to be missed.

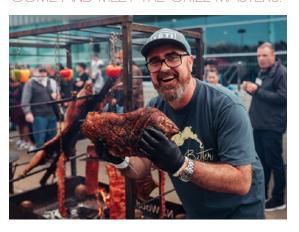

JOIN US IN OUR OWN Auckland Home Show backyard, a space dedicated to the best of outdoor living. This area has its own backyard pool from Narellan Pools, classic cornhole, skittles, or giant kubb games from Backyard Games, and the Nation's best BBQ chefs competing throughout the weekend for prizes and fame. This is an exciting addition to the Auckland Home Show - where you can experience the great Kiwi outdoor lifestyle and get some great ideas for summer!

THE SCA HOME ON THE GRILL COOK-OFF sees teams of passionate backyard barbeque enthusiasts competing for prizes and prestige. With customised barbeque rigs. lots of jaw-achingly perfect pieces of meat and a bunch of passionate personalities who just love barbeguing and are happy to share their secrets.

Carl Grainger (SCA) says it's going to be hot competition with every kind of barbecue imaginable, including big offset barbecues, pellet grills from Trego, open fire pits, hanging frames with various meats, vegetables and fruits all getting a lick of smoke.

The competition features two steak cook-offs, giving competitors a chance to score points and get on the leaderboard, a kids cook-off - getting our next barbecue pit masters to compete cooking burgers. And Grainger hopes to get a couple of Home Show visitors involved as well.

BBQ WIZARD KEN VAN MACKELBERGH AKA 'BBQ Boi' is travelling from the Bay of Islands with his awardwinning crew to demonstrate some American style "low and slow" barbecue cooking.

Visitors are invited to come and see and taste the produce, with five live competition-style barbecue demos including open-fire cooking, Trigger pellet grills and some special guests to be part of the action.

LAURA HEYNIKE The Time Is Right

THE COST-OF-LIVING crisis, high inflation and even higher interest rates... some would say that it's a bad time to invest in a home or renovation? But according to POCKETSPACE INTERIORS founder LAURA HEYNIKE, it's actually a great time to get that project under way. We asked her to tell us why we should NOT be waiting til 2025.

There's a lot of spare capacity right now?

Yeah. If you wanted a new build, for example, architects have had a very slow year - no one was building because the lending cost was so high. So, there is definitely capacity to make a start on your new project straight away. For example, we used to have a wait list of three weeks for us to go to see people in their home, and now we could go see you within a week. So that shows me there is capacity at what should be our busiest time of the year - right now.

Are people holding off spending because the Reserve Bank told them to?

I think there's an element of that. However, inflation is a moving target. And if we all just stop spending altogether, then the whole economic engine comes to a complete halt. Economists have said we're at the bottom of the cycle right now. That means it's a great opportunity to plan renovations and new builds, knowing that the interest rates will likely hold or decrease over time. So that should give people confidence to plan ahead.

You've said trades are available with short lead times. Is that all trades, plumbers, builders, electric?

Builders are starting to get their books full again, which is great to see. However, it takes a while for that to trickle down to the sub-trades like painters and flooring layers because they come in at the end of the builds. So, typically you could get a plumber or painter tomorrow if you wanted and it's really easy to access trades if you want renovations done. However, builders are starting to book up for the end of the year and coming into 2025.

And what about supplies of building products?

Imported building supplies have definitely come down. We were getting monthly price increases, but I haven't seen a price increase from our building suppliers in about five months. And retail stores have had an extremely slow year. And so they're discounting their products because in October they've got all their new stock coming in, so they need to move a lot of their products as well. So quite often you'll find what you need mostly discounted – perfect to buy and hold until your project starts.

A big part of the inflation we faced in recent years came from building and construction sector shortages, didn't it?

Yes. Because there also was a lot of insurance claims as well from natural disasters which pumped into the economy and the inflation of the industry. So I feel like we have been riding a bit of a false growth path because of these natural disasters. And also the COVID projects being funded as a kickstart to get the economy going again. So I feel like we're just seeing that lag - it should definitely pass now.

And what about building consents?

Yeah, we recently had a consent through in 11 days, including RFI time, so that's probably a record for us. So it's eliminating those roadblocks for people to proceed with their renovation or new build. You can't really blame timing as one of them anymore, which we have so often had to accept that no one's going to look at our project for a couple of months. Whereas that's definitely an advantage to the homeowner at the moment.

Sustainable products are coming online but they've been expensive. Are you seeing more economic options as well as more types of products?

Yeah, the sustainable product market is a really exciting one to watch as a designer. Previously there would only be a specific client that could afford it. But now from low builds to luxury builds, the sustainable product range is very broad. We're not wanting to buy and specify a tap that only lasts a year and then it chips. So it's realigning people's expectations with only wanting to do renovations when they have to, not because they have to replace something that's not well-built.

But I think another tier to that is banks are offering sustainable funding to businesses to be better, to design better, to build better. And when you have access to that research and development fund, I think that's been a big difference in seeing businesses taking confident steps to develop their products in a more sustainable way.

And finally, finance. How confident are you that the banks will loan to people now?

Nothing's set in stone, and it definitely comes down to your personal situation, obviously. But we've got all the major banks making moves to cut rates. I don't think they're going to cut dramatically, and I don't think they should. We can start to have those conversations with our banks about ratio lending to improve our assets. There's also options, like we've, for example, partnered up with Q Finance, and are offering 0% interest for 3 months. So there's other options that are available to people.

So, the time is right - now?

The time is right now to get the specification and order products on order so the trades can implement their services as fast as possible, especially to get your house ready for the summer.

18 Kitchen Trends

As eating out is off the menu for many Kiwis at the moment, the kitchen is again the focus for comfort, family harmony and affordable luxury. In the home, the kitchen is king.

IN 2024 AND BEYOND, New Zealand's kitchen design trends focus on creating functional, sustainable, and aesthetically pleasing spaces. With an emphasis on open-plan layouts, innovative storage solutions, eco-friendly materials, and smart technology, the modern kitchen is set to be a versatile and stylish centrepiece of the home.

ENTERTAINER'S DREAM

Distinctive bench materials add texture and contrast to this superb kitchen. Black acrylic cabinetry makes a bold statement against a wooden pitched ceiling, creating a sleek and modern feel. Integrated appliances and hardware combine to give a clean minimalistic look. A carefully positioned induction cooktop and downdraft, ensures that the kitchen is not just a functional space but a showpiece that will catch the eye of all who visit. KITCHEN STUDIO

STYLISH STORAGE

Reaching higher is always a challenge in the kitchen. But, designers around the world have been working on ingenious solutions that lift up, drop down, or turn around the contents of your cupboards. The Higold Kitchen System's smooth opening and closing action makes storage more convenient; the quality from the inside to the outside is strictly controlled to achieve durability. FOTILE

SMALL SOLUTIONS

Homes are shrinking and because of that, appliances need to also. So check out The Midea 3 Place Setting Bench Top Mini Dishwasher. Perfect for small apartment living, tiny houses, aged care facilities and more. It's compact outside, spacious inside and easily portable and is ready to use without any plumbing connection. ### OUTDOORS IN Bringing the outdoors in is a key theme for 2024. Large windows, skylights, and indoor plants create a bright and inviting environment. Herb gardens and vertical plant walls not only add greenery but also provide fresh ingredients. This perfect kitchen garden from Vegepod comes with full spectrum LED grow lights and self-watering allows you to grow herbs and greens all year round. VEGEPOD

EXPRESSO DESIRE

Coffee at home has never been more desirable. But it needs to be barista quality! The new Italian made Elba Gentile turns even the home brewer into an expert.

RECYCLED MATERIALS

Sustainability is a key consideration in modern kitchen design. Recycled glass, reclaimed wood, and other eco-friendly materials are being used for benchtops and splashbacks, offering unique aesthetics while minimizing environmental impact. Bring ancient materials into the home for texture and a connection with nature. BLONDE AMBITION

Engineered stone continues to be a favourite for benchtops due to its durability, low maintenance, and variety of design options. Its non-porous nature makes it resistant to stains and bacteria, ideal for busy kitchens. But if you can afford it, real marble or granite is desirable and eyecatching. This Kitchen Mania Kitchen has all the trends perfectly applied. From smooth clutter-free cabinetry, stone island bench, multifunction appliances and a touch of timber for warmth.

TACTILE MINIMALISM

Bathroom design in 2024 has become all about pared-back simplicity – but with a difference. Andy Grigor, Head of Design & Innovation at Methven, leading the team who designs award-winning showers and tapware, commented that the trend towards softer and more tactile versions of minimalist materials in the bathroom will be popular in homes. "Minimalist aesthetics have made their way into the bathroom from other areas of the house, with simple shapes and textured surfaces, taking centre stage," says Mr Grigor.

HEAT PUMP HOT WATER

New Zealand company Calitec Heat Pump Hot Water Systems is proud to launch the Water Heater WH-70 designed specifically for residential family homes. Due to its high output temperature, the water heater functions as a water circulating system, utilising efficient heat pump power to heat water in the cylinder to 60°C. With an output power of 5.8 kW, it can heat up 124 litres of water per hour. This capacity is twice that of a standard electric heating hot water cylinder. Plus, it's capable of heating two separate cylinders, if needed. CALITEC

BUBBLEJET TECH

Green's new patented BubbleJET® technology delivers a unique spray pattern that envelops you in a warm, spa-like experience. BubbleJET® works by transitioning the water flow through the shower head, creating negative pressure which draws air into the system. That air becomes entrained in the water, and as it exits, produces a highly aerated flow - with thousands of bubbles caressing your skin, and providing a sensation of soft, warm and pure delight.

INSULATE YOURSELF

Most people don't realise the impact of a garage door on the warmth of your home. That cavernous space is often draughty and completely uninsulated. That becomes even more complicated with old fashion aluminium doors that actually transfer cold from the outside to the inside.

The Garage Door Company specialises in premium insulated garage doors, double-skinned to protect your home, even in New Zealand's harshest climates. With many stylish and colourful options to choose from, all installed on superior powder coated tracks, along with Merlin automation. They also specialise in custom cedar and aluminium doors and gates, made to order. THE GARAGE DOOR COMPANY

RUSSELL CLARK of Licensed Renovations is a specialist in residential projects. Here are his quick tips for getting started on your next home renovation.

you do first?

1. STRUCTURE Check the footings, timber piles, and foundations. When renovating, you need to factor these things in, or costly overruns may occur.

renovation started. So, what do

2. INSULATION Start with accessible insulation initially, such as under the floor and ceiling. When you're ready to renovate, you may need to pull off the wallboard and retrofit with upgraded wall insulation and new building paper as well.

3. SERVICES Check out your electrical wiring and hot water cylinder. For a new kitchen, you may need new wiring to cope with the new appliances, and for the new bathroom, you'll need to upgrade that old low-pressure water cylinder or install gas.

4. IMPACT There are so many things you can do that make a bigger difference quite quickly. Paint your house, inside and outside. Re-carpet your home. It can make a good impact Thermally backed drapes can transform a room while dramatically improving warmth.

5. WINDOWS A lot of the old villas we renovate have thin 100-year-old glass. Retrofit with double glazing or install low-e glass to make an enormous difference to the temperature, weather tightness and sound insulation of a room.

6. PERMITS! Get onto the Council early. Waiting for permits or site inspections can slow the project and unpermitted work may have to be redone, which is very costly.

Above: Our client's villa was tired and dated and needed a fresh look with more storage space. We worked with our clients whilst they lived in the home which was carefully managed. We updated the entire living space to a lighter, more modern space for their young family to enjoy for many years to comeadding value to them and future generations.

Do you get the builder or the architect first? Do you ask for a fixed price or a charge-up contract? Here's Russell's advice on getting started.

TEAM BUILDING When it comes to renovating, it's all about getting the right team together. Get your builder, architect, and client all in the same room thinking about and discussing the finished product before you start, because it's much harder if you change your mind halfway through the process.

SPECIALISTS ALWAYS Does your architect or builder specialise in renovations? The team is crucial, because each renovation is unique. There are so many more moving parts and variables in a renovation that having experts in their fields will add a lot of value, and less headache. FUTURE SCOPE Once you have a good scope of work with the architect and builder in agreement, get some concept drawings made and costed first, before you spend a whole heap of money with the architect and council. When the plans are approved by the council and the scope proves too expensive or outside your budget it's going to be expensive to pull back that scope as it's already consented, and you are bound by those plans.

BLOWN BUDGETS? Usually, the budget isn't actually blown; it just wasn't correct at the start. Your builder needs to advise on additional items like insurance, Portaloo's, scaffolding, health and safety. There are so many options and differences in how builders price a job. Discover the hidden costs before you start. Ask as many questions as possible. Do your research.

PLAN IT OUT Outline your thoughts, right down to different paint colours. Are you having a mosaic tile, or is it a bigger tile? Have you got a feature wall? What sort of door handles? Is it high stud? Is it a bungalow door? There are different costs for each of those options. It Takes Time: A lot of those reality TV shows lead us to think you can renovate a bathroom in a week, but by the time it's got three coats of waterproofing, the gib stopping, and the paint's dried, it's more like five weeks. And time is money!

cost of shortcuts Unfortunately, with legislation, specification, law changes, and compliance, it is essential to get things right. Otherwise, you end up with the problem of things not being certified, not being insured, and problems with resale. When it comes time to sell the biggest asset that you have invested in your life, it can be a real pain in the butt and devalue what you've achieved if you haven't done it correctly, with the right contractors and sign-offs.

BUILDING CODE CHANGES MEAN SMOKE ALARM UPGRADES!

The Building Code has changed – now requiring interconnected smoke alarms in new homes and substantial renovations! This change mandates that smoke alarms must be powered by a 10-year long-life battery or hardwired to your mains supply. And all alarms must interconnect wirelessly or via wiring, and they must be installed in every bedroom, living space, hallway, and landing. These updates aim to enhance residential fire protection, but are a significant change for homeowners and landlords wanting to ensure their homes are safe, compliant and insured. CAVIUS NANO

INTERNAL GUTTER SOLUTIONS

Internal rainwater systems are notoriously prone to blockage and leaking from issues like water ingress, faulty design, and poor installation practices. Over time, houses settling, and rust holes exacerbate these problems with sometimes catastrophic results. And many of the systems currently installed on New Zealand houses are now obsolete, making repairs costly and inefficient. RIGS offers a solution—a New Zealand-based, patent-pending fascia conversion system designed to retrofit and upgrade all types of metal fascia and spouting systems used over the past 40 years. From covering old timber fascia to converting problematic internal gutter systems to external ones, RIGS is a versatile solution for improving rainwater management.

Revolutionising Roofing, Window Washing, and More

DRONE TECHNOLOGY has revolutionised all manner of industries, now it is the turn of building, washing and roof maintenance to get a shot of drone innovation.

GARY MCNAMARA of Edwards & Hardy says that use of drones for property inspection is an exciting progression for his roofing business.

Traditional roof inspections require manual labour, involving ladders, harnesses, and sometimes scaffolding, all at significant risk. Drones have transformed this process by enabling quick and safe roof inspections, covering large areas in a fraction of the time.

"Obviously, drones remove all those issues around health and safety. And, in those larger jobs, they can be quite cost effective because they're so much more productive," he says.

McNamara says his drones can inspect gutters, detect structural issues, and provide aerial views of properties to help plan projects. The company then uses Artificial Intelligence (AI) to make sense of the visual data to create a report, that can be used to plan and manage maintenance programs - keeping a long-term record of the state of a roof at the time of inspection.

Likewise, McNamara's specialised house washing drones are designed for efficacy. They're purpose built and tethered to holding tanks to provide a constant flow of treated water, as opposed to traditional drones, that require their tanks to be refilled constantly.

Drones are probably more applicable to larger more difficult commercial properties than they are to residential, but as the technology improves and the cost of drones comes down, they're set to become indispensable tools in the home maintenance industry.

"Especially if you're living in parts of the country where there's a lot of multi-level properties and big drop-offs where you're six levels up – and you can't do the job because it's too dangerous, or it's just going to take a lot of people hours. Whereas you can chuck a drone up there and there's no health and safety issues associated with that," he says.

30 Interior Trends

New Zealand's interior design scene is experiencing a transformative phase, reflecting the country's deep connection to nature and a growing appreciation for sustainable living.

HOME TO NATURE

New Zealand's latest interior design trends celebrate the beauty of nature, the importance of sustainability, and the elegance of simplicity. By embracing natural materials, earthy colours, and innovative designs, homeowners can create spaces that are not only beautiful but also harmonious with the environment. Whether you're renovating a classic villa or designing a modern retreat, these trends offer endless inspiration for creating a stylish and sustainable home.

TIMBER TONES

In a trend that mirrors New Zealand's breathtaking landscapes, natural materials are at the forefront of interior design. Timber, stone, and wool are celebrated for their authenticity and connection to nature. Local woods like rimu and kauri are making a comeback, offering rich textures and warm tones that bring a touch of the outdoors inside. Aspect's bamboo venetians add a touch of golden timber to your home, while at the same time reducing your impact on the environment – being made from the fastest growing timber on the planet. ASPECT BLINDS

BIOPHILIC DESIGN

Incorporating elements of nature into indoor spaces is more than just a trend—it's a lifestyle choice. Living walls, indoor gardens, and an abundance of houseplants are essential features, promoting well-being and air quality. Incredible racks to hang your foliage, but also bringing plant patterns into the kitchen – these designs by The Mad Plantist definitely bring greenery into the home.

FURNITURE FAVOURITES

Timeless yet contemporary pieces are key in the latest New Zealand homes. Sustainable furniture choices are highly sought after, with reclaimed wood tables, recycled metal frames, and natural fibre upholstery gaining popularity. Multifunctional furniture, like modular sofas and extendable dining tables, cater to the versatile living spaces that are increasingly common. As we eat out less and spend more time watching Netflix than attending movies, that all important lounge chair becomes the focus for your home life and emotional regeneration. And if you're going to be spending hours on a LOTR marathon for example, you'll want a recliner with a matching Ottoman to make that 13 and a half hours more enjoyable. Check out the IMG Milan sofa, with a powered recline and footrest, users can easily adjust to find their preferred level of support enhancing comfort and promoting good posture all at the touch of a button. #### INNOVATIVE TILES

Tiles are enjoying a renaissance, with bold patterns and textures becoming the go-to choice for kitchens and bathrooms. Moroccan-inspired designs, hexagonal shapes, and terrazzo tiles are making a statement, offering a playful yet sophisticated look. For those seeking a more understated approach, subway tiles in varied finishes, such as gloss, matte, and crackle glaze, are popular. These tiles are often laid in unique patterns, like herringbone or vertical stacks, to add a modern twist. ## FIVE MINUTES WITH SEAN MONK

Designers SEAN MONK and KELLY GAMMIE of RAREBIRDS INTERIORS believe the design process should be enjoyable and exciting, with the completed project giving every client renewed joy and pride in their newly designed spaces. We're delighted that they're sharing their insights as one of our 'Ask the Experts' presenters again this year. We asked Sean to tell us more about his philosophy and what the trends are for 2024 and beyond.

The world has changed a lot in a year, hasn't it?

Yeah, everybody's slowly coming out of the COVID coma now - when I came back from the design shows in Milan, I could definitely sense more energy in the air.

So, tell us about what you learned in Milan?

Milan was incredible. I was there for four and a half days, and that was not enough time to cover it all. It was really interesting to see brands starting to move away from 'Trends' - moving away from the generic offering, and figuring out what represents them as brands, and in that way, encouraging people to have fun, and express themselves more uniquely using their products.

So we're going to see more expressive homes here? More individuality?

I hope so. In New Zealand, we've always struggled with that a bit. We're still a little bit behind the global trends, because of where we are on the planet, but what I'm seeing in Europe is starting to filter down. People are trying to work out what tells their story, and what expresses them more, instead of going with whatever everybody else says is popular.

What are the trends that will filter down?

The thing about trends is that they are just a direction - they're not something that should be strictly adhered to. If you see a picture in a magazine, don't take that as gospel as to what you should have – listen instead to your own personal preferences, likes, and dislikes. That's always one of our biggest challenges as designers - encouraging clients to be braver in their selections, to really tell their story, and express themselves.

Are clients scared of making mistakes?

A lot of clients say: "I want something that's timeless," - but timeless design doesn't exist. Something is always going to be related to a certain date, and a certain period, and a certain time in people's lives. And I don't think that that's all bad, because beautiful things belong to certain dates. You've got the Art Deco movement, you've got mid-century design, and beautiful '70s and '80s vintage. So there's actually nothing wrong with things dating a little bit. If it's well-designed, layered and curated, and well-thought-out, that in itself, means it's relevant.

So what did you see Milan that inspired you?

There's just so much variety now. We're starting to see a move away from these kinds of safe and boring one-note palettes. Bathroomware is a really good example - we're now talking coloured tapware, with greens, reds, yellows, blues, and pastels. Bathroom fittings that imitate nature! I saw some Gessi product that looked like bamboo! It was beautiful and so fascinating to see in person! There's so much colour and texture everywhere. It's just so cool to see a lot of these brands really pushing design boundaries, in their own rights, and according to their own ethos, and just being truly individual from one another.

Your talk is going to be about 'Enhancing Outdoor Living'. Why is that important?

I think a well-designed garden, and how you accessorise it is no different to styling the interior of your home. Those spaces are an extension of you and your living space. There's no point in going to all this effort to craft a really, really, beautiful house, but then your outdoor space doesn't leverage what you've already established. It's very easy to overlook, and I think it's one of those areas that's really going to start having some attention paid to it.

> Sean and Kelly will be speaking in the DESIGN/RENOVATE/DECORATE seminar series in HALL 2 daily at 12.30pm and 1.30pm. > See the schedule for details.

Storage is so hot right now, with incredible new tech coming through. We spoke to Kitchen Story designer, HANNAH JOHNSON about the whys and wherefores of cabinets and storage.

Why is storage such a hot topic at the moment?

New builds are getting quite a bit smaller, so people are really trying to make their spaces as functional as possible. Solutions like blind corner pullouts and drawers in the pantry are becoming quite pivotal points for a kitchen design. And the space tower, for example, allows you to have full access to everything rather than losing bits at the back like you would on shelves.

And you're making use of the full height?

Yes, we go right to the ceiling. And even if it's long-term storage, we still like to put cabinetry up there, so people can put things up there that are not necessarily needed every day. And there are options to put pull-down cabinetry inserts like the Karlo from ENKO, so you have access to what's in there - which is great for people who are shorter in height or potentially have difficulties with accessibility.

How do you get up to those higher shelves?

Blum do a SPACE STEP, which gives you about 200 ml of height that can pull out from the toe kick, which enables you to access those higher areas, which is very great for access in there and general function in the kitchen space.

And what about those tricky spaces?

There are a lot of other companies we use for hardware for blind corner solutions or overhead pullouts. We really like the Vibo Fly Box from ENKO, which is like a train unit. Or we use a lot of Hafele in their Kesseboehmer range, which is a mixture of wire racks with a solid base for blind corners or lazy Susan kind of things.

Everyone is wanting to get the appliances off the countertops now. Right?

People like to hide a lot of what they would normally have in a kitchen. So, you might just see a coffee machine and the mixer out, but they want their rice cooker, their kettle, their toaster, everything else all hidden away. These units are great accessibility-wise, so you're not crawling into the back of a cupboard to find that item.

And it's not just the kitchen, you're doing this into bathrooms and laundries and other areas.

Yeah. So a really popular thing that's come through in laundries at the moment is people putting in built-in hampers. So they've got somewhere to put the towels or the sheets that they're not necessarily putting in their washing basket, but they want them not on the floor in their laundry.

What is your job like at Kitchen Story?

I love working here. I love the fact that when a client comes in with an idea or a dream or they've seen something, that we're able to turn that into a reality. We're pretty open and flexible about trying to make everything that a client wants come to life. Their job is to bring a vision - it's our job to turn it into reality.

LAUNDRY LOVE

A well-designed laundry space revolves around efficient storage. Having access to plentiful storage helps keep laundry rooms organised with all the mess hidden behind closed doors. Built-in cabinets, shelving, and pull-out hampers provide easy access to essentials like detergents, linens, ironing board and more, reducing clutter and improving space utilisation. Innovative vertical storage units, like dropdown baskets and hanging systems help optimise space in smaller laundry areas and access to the hard to reach places. Everything in its place: stunning storage solulutions pictured on this page all from Kitchen Story,

FLEXIBLE SPACE

Small spaces demand innovative solutions. How to get pieces up off the floor without clutter? How to mix closed door storage with display shelves? The modern home needs flexibility as well as style. This Hamptons living room TV cabinet showcases a sophisticated design with a lacquered surround and Laminex panel doors. The piece features a combination of floating shelves and cupboards, offering a seamless blend of style and practicality for both storage and display.

CLUTTER COLLECT: THE DISRUPTOR MAKING DECLUTTERING EASY AND CHARITABLE

CLUTTER COLLECT – the home of easy, feel-good decluttering" - is transforming the way Aucklanders declutter their homes. As a disruptor in the home organisation and decluttering industry, Clutter Collect offers an innovative and convenient service, providing "Clutter Boxes" to simplify the process. Customers fill these boxes with unwanted items, which are then collected and responsibly redistributed within the community. Partnering with local charities like Everlasting, Woven Earth, and Habitat for Humanity, Clutter Collect ensures that unwanted household clutter makes a meaningful impact. This unique approach not only helps clients reclaim their living spaces but also supports charitable causes, fostering a sense of community and purpose. In addition to its charitable efforts, Clutter Collect is committed to sustainable practices, ensuring that items are reused or recycled, reducing landfill waste. With the growing trend towards eco-conscious living, Clutter Collect stands out as a leader in the decluttering industry.

34 Colour Trends

Resene's hotly anticipated colour trend forecast is out and it's full of surprises. Walk through the pallettes that will be turning heads for 2025 and beyond.

TRENDWATCH: COLOUR CONNECTIONS

A FEAR OF clashing colours and a disjointed final look can be big hurdles to overcome in going beyond a neutral palette and experimenting with different on-trend colours in your interiors. But used thoughtfully, with a bigger picture in mind, not only can clever colour combinations make purely functional spaces come alive, but they can also create better flow and cohesiveness between interconnected spaces. RESENE COLOUR Expert Jill Marsh offers some tips and tricks for an inspired home.

CREATE COHESION

There are myriad ways to use colour to bring the disparate rooms of your home together in ways that surprise and delight. Start with trim areas. Keeping skirting, window and door frames the same colour throughout your home will instantly help to connect each space – forming the foundation of any colour scheme and keeping a lovely flow.

FRAMED

Layering tonally similar shades of green helps make this open dining and living space feel like a cohesive area. Curved decorative features add to the connection.

Project by Vanessa Nouwens, image by Bryce Carleton.

PLACES TO PLAY

The entranceway area is the perfect place for an accent colour that can be echoed throughout the house. Colours used in the entranceway can be then added in small or large touches throughout the house, so the whole building feels connected. Stairwells and landings can be another great place to experiment with colour contrasts that draw you through these high connecting spaces into other rooms. Spaces connected by open archways and other wide, doorless entries are excellent areas to play with contrasting colours or darker and lighter versions of similar colours. They draw people from one room to another, even if it's just visually, making each space feel open, larger and connected. The key to cohesiveness throughout a home is to not go too crazy with too many different colours and different styles. Colours work best when they complement each other, especially if they can be seen from one space to another.

> To learn how to bring a colour scheme together confidently with your favourite colours and how to make the most of your space, check out the RESENE daily seminar sessions in the DESIGN/RENOVATE/DECORATE SEMINARS.

TRENDWATCH: INSPIRED EXTERIORS

WHETHER YOUR HOME'S exterior is clad with weatherboard, timber, concrete, brick, plaster stucco, fibre-cement or corrugated steel, there is a RESENE product that's fit to protect it from whatever nature throws at it. But when it comes to choosing your colours, the most popular hues often correlate to the style of the home.

NATURALLY

Timber stained with Resene Woodsman offers natural appeal while protecting your investment from the weather. With a huge range of wood stains to choose from you can go as dark or as light as you want.

When choosing medium to dark paint and wood stain colours on your home's exterior surfaces, consider using the Resene CoolColour formula. It looks like the regular Resene colour but has been technologically formulated to reflect heat.

REFRESH Embrace the trend to thrifting and refresh surfaces instead of replacing them. Mimic the chic look of Mediterranean tiles on your patio pavers by hand-painting or stencilling them in an array of complementary designs.

ALL BLACKS Kiwis like their black home exteriors, and while black is almost always trending for the exterior of kiwi homes, the exact black does change over time. The current trend is to jet black wood stain finishes such as Resene Pitch Black or to near blacks with a range of charcoal hues. Home designed by Atlas Architects.

washed Paint is a great opaque option for changing the look of your concrete walls, patio pavers or planters, but you can also add buildable semi-transparent colour with the Resene In The Wash collection of finishes. These colours can be applied to surfaces in a uniform manner using spray application, such as on these outdoor patio paving stones, to achieve an even wash of colour. But if you're after an artistic, fresco-like look, you can experiment with how you apply them.

On the front two plant pots, we applied the wash with a brush in a criss-cross manner to create appealing visual texture.

CHEERS Bring a cheerful energy to your backyard space by painting furniture, plant pots and accessories in a monochromatic palette of turquoise blues to complement pale blue weatherboards. It's an easy way to make the most of what you already own at a fraction of the cost of buying new.

36 Outdoor Trends

Visualise your outdoor space as your own personal oasis – a place for family, for entertainment and to commune with nature. Fill it with a kitchen, pool, hot tub and sauna, cover with a louvre... Outside is where the heart is!

LOUVRE LOVER

STEAMY STYLE

Home saunas are increasingly popular, transforming personal spaces into serene wellness retreats. Rustic wooden designs, traditional heaters and hot stones create a luxurious experience for unparalleled relaxation. The trend has surged as people prioritise self-care and stress relief, seeking convenient ways to enjoy spa-like experiences at home. With benefits like improved circulation, detoxification, and muscle recovery, home saunas offer a perfect blend of health and indulgence, making them a must-have feature of any home. Expertly crafted from durable cedar wood, this Barrel Sauna provides a private sanctuary for your recovery and rejuvenation.

GRASS TO LAST

Urban Turf artificial grass was chosen for this residential build because a real grass lawn could not grow successfully under the trees. The base construction for the grass enabled us to build a flat surface on a challenging section that was then able to be used in all-weather by the customers young children. Urban Prestige 40mm was chosen as it's the most realistic landscaping grass on the market. Made in Australia for New Zealand's climate, child friendly, pet friendly and almost no maintenance required.

WORK FROM HOME

Forging the perfect work-from-home space shouldn't mean losing the spare bedroom. Take your office outside into nature with a purpose built shed. This separate office space can balance the demands of your professional life and allow you to keep your house as a home. Let your own imagination transform an EcoShed wooden garden shed into a functional and stylish Home Office, studio, Man-Cave or a sleepout.

SWIM IN STYLE

Don't just plonk a pool on the back lawn! Instead, carefully integrate it into the living areas of the home, with lighting, landscaping and the energizing sound of running water. Compass fibreglass ceramic core pools feature 'Maxi Rib' technology making them self-supported, allowing them to be installed onto difficult sloping sites or completely out of ground if required, negating the need for expensive retaining. And unlike other premoulded fibreglass pools, Compass Pools are customisable with features such as vanishing edges, acrylic windows, beaches, benches, splash zones, waders, tanning ledges and water features!

LIFESTYLE EVOLUTION

Todd Lay from NZ Louvres says that in terms of trends, we're seeing a change in the way people view their outdoor space and what louvres bring to the equation. "Historically, louvres have been used to create a nice "outdoor space" whereas more recently, there has been a focus on using our louvre opening roof to increase the home's living space," he says. "Because our louvres can be fully integrated into both new and existing homes, the new space becomes an extension of your home's living area. The result is a lifestyle evolution; a transformation of the way we use the home's common area for work, rest, play, and connecting with friends and family," he says.
